

Modern neural networks are made up of hundreds of simpler building blocks

Each block contains a set of parameters that are adjusted during training